THE LAST CHANCE! A STRANGE HISTORY.

Thrilling Era-The Duty of the Hour-A Splendid Opportunity and a Glittering Prize.

The most exciting and momentous epoch of American history is upon us. A presidential campaign is opening, which will decide for democracy and liberty, or radicalism and the downfall of republican government. The recent democratic victories inspire the hopes of freemen. Business is reviving, and the people seek eagerly for political and general information. Consequently, newspapers are more eagerly sought and are being taken to every intelligent household, as the greatest source of home education and amusement.

inclination for a life of crime and fraud was encouraged and stimulated, if not first developed, by his connection with a youthful band of maranders who gave themselves the cuphonious title of "The Red Rangers," which was famous here a quarter of a century ago. This band of youthful robbers was modelled after the characters in Jack Shepperd and Claude Duval, and was a direct outgrowth of the reading of these pernicious books. They indulge in midnight forays on orchards and hen roosts, and even ventured to enter and rob stores. Their final undertaking was an attempt to blow up Union block, Battle creek, in zlet the gentleman then sooke to several which one of the religious societies at that time held their meetings. Children of the Same Mormon Pather not Acquaired with Each

From the Salt Lake Thune, December : which one of the religious societies at that time held their meetings. The conspiracy of the young rascals was very fortunately discovered, and the band was broken up. Most of the members recovered from their youthful penchant for a life of crime and adventure, and are now useful members of society. Not so, however, with young Cowlam. The desire to lead a life of ease, even if also dishonest, was too deeply ingrafted upon his nature to be eradicated. After a time he disappeared from the notice of his old associates, and it was understood that he had gone to Canada to escape the penalty of seme violation of the law. After the lapse of a few years he reappeared, seeming much improved in appearance and morals. He claimed to be in some business connected with the government. Ha had plenty of money, of which he was lavish, but old acquaintances, were fearful that all was not right, and so it made long stops in Jacksonville with particular friends, and had long conversations with leading conservatives. But little was thought of this at the time. Suddenly he disappeared again, and the next heard from him was from a telegram to friends in Jacksonville, announcing his appointment as United States marshal in place of Conant, who had been a most efficient and reliable officer. He also announced that the district-attorney had been removed for "cause," and a new one appointed. This was a thunder-bolt from a clear sky to the friends of the deposed gentleman, and congressman Walls was dispatched to Washington to find out what it all meant. He went to the president about it, who told him that Cowlam was the man: that he came highly recommended by prominent men in Florida from the governor down, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked, and that the proofs he brought of irregular could not be overlooked.

ton to find out what it all meant. He went to the president about it, who told him that Cowlam was the man: that he ame highly recommended by prominent men in Florida from the governor down, and that the proofs he brought of irregular conduct by the marshal and district attorney could not be overlooked, and cousequently he had removed them. Mr. Walls then exhibited the proofs which he had brought to show the nature of Cowlam's conspiracy, and convinced the president that he was a mere adventurer. He immediately told Attorney-General Williams to revoke the appointments and reappoint the old officials.

Blocked in his game, Cowlam's genius came to his aid, and he tried another tack. By the aid of certain parties who, it is charitable to suppose, were ignorant of his true character, he was nominated on the conservative ticket for member of congress. So certain was he of election that the "slate was made up," and the federal offices apportioned to his particular friends; but "the best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft aglee," and so it was with would be congressman Cowlam. He had proclaimed boldly that during the war he was a government detective, and had reported personally to General Grant, and was on intimate terms with him. It Don inquiry this proved to be a complete canard, and now certain parties determined to trace out his previous record, therefore letters were written to Battle Creek and nother places, and the replies soon came in the shape of affidavits from the superintendent and warden of the Virginia penitentiary, showing conclusively that Cowlam had served a term in that institution with his hair "sand-papered." It seems that he had slightly changed his name, spelling the last of the constitution.]

clusively that Cowlam had served a term in that institution with his hair "sand-papered." It seems that he had slightly changed his name, spelling the last syllable with an "n," and pronouncing it "Cou-lam instead of Cowlam." He was still, however, the same "old sixpence" as when he stole water-melons and robbed hen-roosts, only with larger game in view. After this crushing exposure he left the state and disappeared from view, and shortly thereafter the discovery was made that instead of being a "detective" he was a sort of "revenue spotter" who

DYING STATEMENT OF DOUGLAS.

New York, December 14.—An extra, reporting the shooting of the two burghars at Bay Ridge, says: Among the persons attracted to the spot was Richard Herkey, a sailor, whose house was only a little distance from Van Brunt's residence. Between him and the wounded man the following remarkable conversation took place: The dying man, says Herkey, was lying on the ground, and I asked him his name. He said it was Joseph Douglas, and that he resided in New York. The name of the man who was killed, he told me, was William Mosely, also of New York. He then voluntarily made the following statement, without any suggestion having been made by any one present: "I and Mosely were the men who abducted Charlie Ross? DYING STATEMENT OF DOUGLAS.

He then said that William Mosely had him concealed somewhere, but where he did not tell me. He also stated tha Mosely was a married man, and had six children, but whether he had Charlie Ross with them or not he could not tell. He begged God to forgive im, and wanted a minister sent for. He was quite sensible when he made that statement, and several persons were present and heard what he said.

The bodies of the men were covere up and left in the place where they wer shot on the grass in the custody of co stable, until the coroner should give co-stable, until the coroner should give permission for their removal. The men are believed to have been river pirates. A boat was found moored to the long about half a mile from the Variant residence.

It appears that in effecting an engage to Judge Van Brunt's residence the thieves aprung a burglar alarm which connected with an adjacent residence, and aroused the inmates, who turned out. The burglars discovering that they wers liable to be captured, left cantiously. They fired at two of the pursuing party and ran. They were then fired upon with the effect stated.

The Abduction of Charlie Ross.

New York, December 14.—Another report of the shooting of the two burglars at Bay Ridge, shows that the house of Judge Van Brunt was empty, and it was the judge's brother, his son, and a farm laborer named Scott, who did the shooting, they having come from the brother's house when notified by the burglar alarm. Albert Van Brunt, the young man, killed Mosher, and Douglas was killed by the laborer with a shot gun, his bowels being frightfully mangled. He survived only half an hour. In his confession he declared that he and Mosher were well known to the police. While he declared that Mosher was the kidnapper of Charlie Ross, he admitted that he was assistant in the theft of the child. He asserted that the hiding place of the child had been kept from him by Mosher. He was unmarried, and Mosher had a wife and six children. None but the robbers were wounded in the confict, though five barrels of their revolvers were found discharged. They were by he entered the confederate service as one condition of his pardon, as he is a man of the most crafty disposition, and as smooth, plausible tongue, he doubtless made a good rebel agent; but on this point there is no definite information. He is next heard from as an internal requirement of the beds, except the entered the theard from as an internal requirement it was difficult to fly, as he had a mysterious and retice that servery one supposed his power much greater than he told them. This was in 1809-70. The President actively he left so much to inference that every one supposed his power much greater than he told them. This was in 1809-70. The Presidential campaign of 1872 came on and curiously enough, Cowlam began to take a suddenly he disappeared again, and the next heard from him was from a telegram to friends in Jacksonville, amouncing his and spatch received by Mr. Ross.

The Columbus Enquirer discusses the question at some length, but the following pointed paragraph sufficiently shows the that sensible journal stands:

We are in favor of letting the law stand as it is. A man's money is his property, and he should be allowed to sell it at the market price, which is "what it will bring," it the holders of other property are allowed to do the same thing. We cannot distinguish between usury and sumptuary laws. It has state undertakes to fix the rate of interest, determining that any higher rate is sinful or against public policy, why not fix the price of bread in the same way? Both are acquired or produced by labor, both are regulated in price by the law of supply and demand, and if one is more a necessity of life than the other, it is bread. When we can be convinced.

of the property of compolling a man by law to sell corn at fifty cents a bushel or not sell it at all, we can better appre-hend the justice of forcing a man to loan his money at 7 per cent. Interest or not

We regret that we have not space for an able editorial, from Wednesdey's Savannah News, that thoroughly exposes the folly of usury laws. Let the following paragraphs suffice: We have said that the usary law is erative. If this were all, we might its re-enactment with some degree other to transgress the law. For it nust be plain to all that no legislature must be plain to air that no legislature can adequately measure or estimate the necessities of the individual, and herein lies the gist of the whole matter. What lies the gist of the whole matter. marvellous transformation is this that qualifies a law-maker to adjust your pai-vate contracts? Your vote may give white he power, forsooth, but does it quality him? Why, look you, it is a wone arful legislator who can even guess what his own necessity may be.

We are not only opposed to the inten-

We are not only opposed to the inten-tion of the usury law, which is to inter-fere with the private contracts of individuals, but we are opposed to its practical results. Those who favor its re-enactnent say that the law will bring about a of interest. But is this true ? lower rate of interest. But is this true? Suppose that, owing to low rents or bad seasons, you have been compelled to make a mortgage on your house or your farm, and suppose that the mortgage is about to fall due. You must lift that incumbrance, or allow your property to be sacrificed; in short, you must borrow money. You go, therefore, to a banker and sol cit a loan. He very frankly tells you that he can use his money to greater advantage than by letting it out at seven per cent. You offer nine. He reminds you of the law; but in your necessity, what is the law to you? Nevertheless, the statute is a barrier, and the banker, if he accommodates you at all, must not only get a fair price for the use of his money, but must also receive a just equivalent for the risk of the transaction. And you—you would be but a sorry knave, andeed, if, when the inevitable pay-day comes, you should plead usury. A law that invites a person to possess himself of the property of another under talse pre-tences is an abomination, and its enforcement is so exceedingly difficult that wher ever it is attempted only ludividuals are Hampty Dumpty.

To-night George L. Fox, with his large troupe of spdcialty artists, acrobats, vocalists and dancers, will begin a short engagement at DeGive's opera house, affording fun to the heart's content. This partomime is one of roaring, rolicking, indescribable humor, and one at the same time not the least offensive to any of the proprieties of life, or the least objectionable to modest ladies or gentlemen. Immense audiences of wealth and fashion filled the theatre in New Orleans. The Mobile Register says: "Hump-ty Dumpty has never been played here before. Many have played at it, but no one has for one instant ever imitated the resistless grotesqueness and fun of Fox. His staff of aides is well worthy of their chief.
"Of the thousand and one funny tricks, magical transformations and absurd mishaps of this pantomime, we shall not pause to speak."

at a Good Deal of Smoke.—We are pretty reliably informed by colored people of future and intelligence that the rumors that numbers of their race will leave this place, Athens, and other points, soon for the west, have been greatly exaggerated. Many of them are restless and wish to rove about, others are really anxious, if possible, to make any move that will improve their condition; but yery few comparatively have actually made their arrangements to go. A very few families have left this place. One or two colored men have gone out to look around, and will then decide what to do. The time for settling down for another year approaches, and those that are disposed to work and advance their interest had best be making the best arrangements they can here and then earnestly go to work. Bread, and meat, and clothing, all come only by labor, and no doubt it can be made as easily here as elsewhere.

The theme of the lecture was "intemperance." The subject was handled in a masterly manner. It has often been scoken upon, but we have never heard it so forcibly delineated or pictured with so much originality and power. Ned wasan old family servant, about 55 years old. For several years his health has not been good. He was accustomed every morning quite early, to leave his room, which was attached to the kitchen, and to do service about the premises. Yesterday morning not making his appearance, Mrs. Flynn had his room examined, when be was found dead in bed. This occurred about 11 o'clock during the day. What hour he died was not ascertained; he had worked the previous day.

The verdict of the jury was that he died from dropsy of the heart.

THE TAX BATTLE. THE DISTRIBUTION.

DeGive's Opera House The Decision of Judge Hopkins.

He Holds That Most of the Railroads are Liable. The great aux battle of the state against the railroads, which has occupied our superior court. Tuesday, of the present week, and was argued by many of the ablest attornly an the state, was decided yesterday by his Bonersladge Hopkins. The case is of the most important ever tried in this circuit. Under the old tax isw, which required the roads to pay one-half of one per cent, upon their net incomes, the state received $3,000. Under the tax act of 1874, the one upon which the fight is made, they are requested to pay an advelorem tax of one-half of one per cent upon everything they possess, and were this ux collected it would increase the revenue of the state to about $165,000 yearly. We give below the decision of the court, in which it will be seen that most of the roads are held liable. Judge Hopkins said: The affidavit of filegality of the tax on the Augusts and Waynesboro, now Augusta and Savannah railroad, is sustained. This case rests solely on the question whether the state had the right to change the charter of the road of its own motion. The charter that was granted in 1833, provided that a tax of half of one per cent, on their income, has never been changed by the parties to the contract, and the state

A LEGAL ROMANCE.

A Novel Case at the Court House Yesterday.

[From the Rome Commercial.]

Yesterday there was brought before Judge Underwood a case of rare occurrence, and such as to so strongly enlist one's symputhies as to partake more of the nature of a novel and to throw the charms of romence around the dry technicalities of law. On account of its nature and our respect for the feelings of the parties interested, there was some hesitation in our mind about the propriety of alluding to it in our chronicles of Rome. But as the notoriety of a trial in court has already lifted the veil of privacy from the case and its concominant circumstances, we hope and suppose Rome. "THE Sabbath of Creation" at James Hall to-night.

A Pleasant Affair.—Yesterday afternoon, about four o'clock, came off one of those little affairs that are always pleasant. The police force of the city assembled at police headquarters and presented the Mayor with a heavy, gold-headed cane. It is the first time the entire police have been together since they were sworn in. The police were represented in an exceedingly neat and appropriate little speech by Alderman J B. Goodwin, and very happily replied to by the mayor. The inscription on the cane is: "Presented by the Atlanta police of 1874 to Hon. S. B. Spencer."

A Handsome Present.—Yesterday Mr. A Pope, the courteous agent of the Atlantic Coast Line, donated to the Library Exposition, one first class ticket from Augusta to New York. The handsome donation was duly appreciated by the ladies, and is only another instance of Mr. Pope's generosity.

HON. JULIAN HARTRIDGE, Hon. George A. Mercer, of Savannah, and Col. John H. Christy, of Athens, are in the city.

Gen. John B. Gordon is expected in the city to-day.

RURIED.—Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Moses Hopkius, who died on Wednesday night, at his coarding house, on Broad street, was buried.

Mark W. Johnson, Wooderuff & Co., have received fity barrels Early Rose potatoes for first planting.

The Georgia Railroad & Banking Company comes partly within this ruling, except as to the stock issued under the act of October 1868, after the adoption of the constitution of 1868. The new stock is subject to be taxed under the tax act of 1874, and to that extent the affidavit of illegality is overruled. The Central railrad an i Macon and Western railroad occupy this attitude. The act consolidating the two companies made a new corporation, with the name of the old Central railroad and Banking company, and the attempt to confer on the new company the rights and privilegres granted by the charter of 1833, is ineffectual, because in controvention of the constitution of 1868,

Years have past; in every clime, Changing with the changing time, Varying through a thousand forms, Torm by factions, rocked by storms, Still the sacred table spread, Flowing cup and broken bread, with that parting word agree, 'Drink and eat—remember Me."

When by treason, doubt, unrest, Sinks the soul, dismay'd, oppres When the shadows of the tomb Close us round with deepening gloor.
Then bethink us at that board
Of the sorrowing, suffering Lord,
Who, when tried, and grieved as we,
Dying said, "Remember Me."

When thro' all the scenes of life, Hearths of peace and fields of strife, Friends or foes together meet, Now to part and now to greet; Let those holy tokens tell Of that sweet and sad farewell, And, in mingled grief or glee, Whisper still, "Remember Me."

When diverging creeds shall learn Towards their central Source to to When contending churches tire
Of the earthquake, wind and fire;

-N. Y. Corr. Cincinnati Commercial: The Tribune paid Charles Reade a thousand dollars for his short story about the Scotch "Hero and Martyr" James Lam-bert, and the author got the same amount for it in London, the publication of it tor it in London, the publication of it-having been simultaneous there and here. This was pretty heavy for a story which occupied only five columns of the Com-mercial, and I should not be surprised if his copywright from the pamphlet edi-tion of it brought him a couple of thou-sand dollars more.

—The London Times narrates that a mysterious basket, addressed to the station-master at Clapham Junction, on being opened was found to contain aliving child. The station-master declining the gift, a porter volunteered to accept it, and took the basket and child. On lifting the child $800 pounds was found in the basket. The story goes that the station-master then demanded the basket and its contents, which the porter very properly refused to give up. One can tion-master then demanded the basket and its contents, which the porter very properly refused to give up. One can hardly doubt to which of the two the mother would intrust her child.

DR. CALHOUN'S LIVER PILLS. AM engaged in the manufacture of the Celebrated Family Medicine, known as the Calhoun Liver and Anti-Bilious Pills, ander the supervision and assistance of Dr. Calhoun himself. This Pill has been in use for the last 35 years, and has taken precedence over all other Family preparations by dence over all other Family preparations by all that have used them. Thousands would cartify to their great value if necessary. One tact should supercede any amount of certificates, and that fact is this: Dr. Calhoun has been physician to the Fulton County Prison for over seven years, when the number of prisoners ranged from 20 to 70, laboring under all the diseases incidental to this climate. With but few exceptions they have all been treated with this Pill, and actonishing to say during that long period not a solitary death occurred under his treatment. This fact is worth any amount of testimonials.

I am now prepared to fill orders from druggists, merchants and others. All orders sent me shall receive prompt attention. There is no type of FEVER, DYNPEPPIA, DIARRHERA, DYNENTERY, RHEUMATISM, CHOLERA MORBUS, BILLOUSNESS and SIUK HEADACHE, or other diseases of a Southern climate, but yield readily to this preparation.

PREMIUM FLOUR.

FLOUR! PREMIUM

CAREFULLY EXAMINED TO THE PUBLIC

In again calling attention to our popular grades of flours, we will attempt no further elaboration of their merits, except to say, that no flour in the wide world can surpass our FFF in purity of stock and richness of sample; and that the world can't produce a more substantial or nutritive flour than our FF.

The Family is good for the price, but, necessarily limited in quantity; being made only when we make the FFF.

We can readily fill orders for FFF and FF; but in selling Family, we are compelled to limit the orders to the supply on hand.

Orders for the three grades in equal quantity can be filled at short notice. or for FFF and Family in nearly equal quantities. Orders can generally be supplied promptly.
